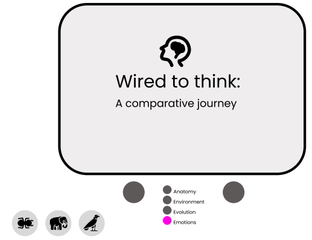
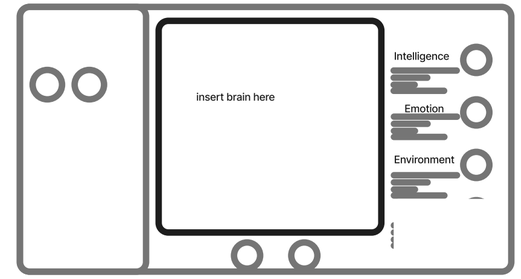
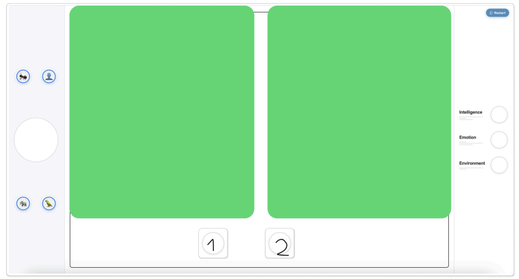
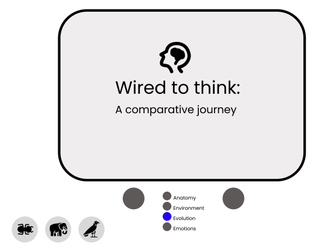
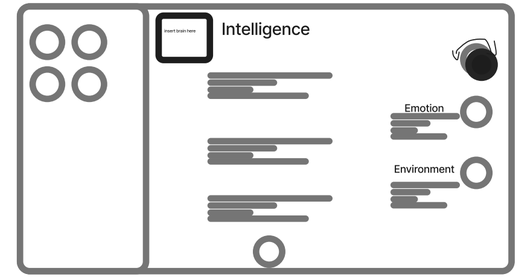
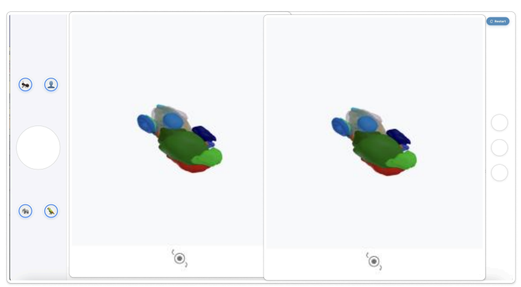
First Prototypes


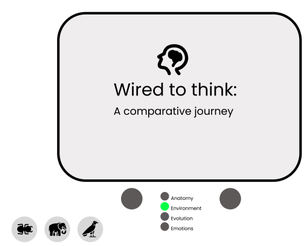


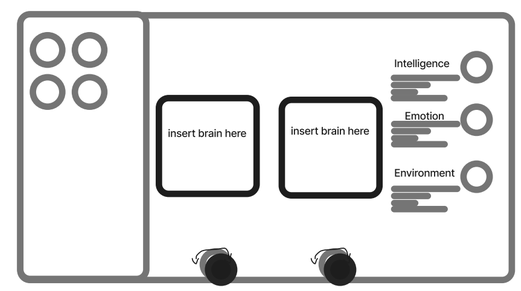












After defining that we wanted to use figures of different species as tangible elements, and that these would be used to select the information we wanted to display, we began developing different layouts and prototypes of how we envisioned the final platform.